Handsome to Historians

In his day, the person who modelled for this mask may have been a big noise in his community. By our standards he isn't handsome, but that doesn't prevent Rita Rhind, of the Royal Ontario Museum, from appreciating the fine historical points of one of the 250 African masks on display at the Toronto museum.

Thunderous Blast in Istanbul

30 Killed, 100 Hurt As Offices Explode

ISTANBUL (AP) — Thirty persons were feared killed and 100 severely injured in a thunderous explosion yesterday that shattered two crowded four-storey office buildings in old central Istanbul.

Three of the dead were passengers in a passing bus crushed by debris.

Another four died as they sat in a coffee shop across the narrow street from the blast.

Among the tenants in the buildings were the newspapers Istanbul Ekspres and Yeni Gazete.

One of the building owners said the explosion appeared to come from a warehouse in the rear in which chemicals and other inflammable goods were stored.

One of the two buildings was completely crumbled. The other, housing the newspapers, looked as if its back end had been sliced away.

The explosion occurred at the height of mid-morning traffic. Police cordoned off the area and diverted all traffic. Ninety minutes later victims still were being dug from the debris.

At the Art Gallery

On Rare Occasions, A Display Like This

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

It is difficult to obtain great paintings of the past for exhibition purposes as the bulk of them are already in museums, art galleries and private collections. It is only on rare occasions that a collection like the Hammer Collection is available and it is due to the fact that Victoria now has a fireproof gallery that we have been able to bring it here.

Such exhibitions attract large crowds and are well worth the trouble and expense involved, for they may bring to some people the initial experience with masterpieces and offer a brief glimpse of greatness.

As great painting, to be fully enjoyed, must be seen again and again, the three-week showing of the Hammer Collection will be all too short.

It consists mainly of Dutch, Flemish and Italian paintings of the 17th century but there are also earlier examples, like the "Madonna and Child" by Fra Filippo Lippi which belongs to the Florentine school of the 15th century.

A monk of lively character and armorous adventures, Fra Filippo Lippi became a Carmelite friar but later abandoned the community to devote himself to a life of painting.

Ignoring the ecclesiastical outlook of the priests, the jovial monk looked upon the Madonnas as lovely subjects for his brush and brought to painting more subtle color and poetic feeling combined with worldly zest.

The story goes that he kidnapped Lucretia Buti, a beautiful nun and that she bore him a son out of wedlock. This son was Filippino Lippi, who was to become a famous painter.

Tintoretto, of the Venetian school, was one of the world's most prolific painters. His range was remarkable — he painted all sorts of historical and mythological subjects, as well as innumerable portraits and religious themes.

He was called "The Thunderbolt" on account of his terrific energy, and his "Paradise," which now hangs in the Ducal Palace, was completed after he was 70. It measures 75 by 30 feet and contains more than 500 figures.

By his use of three dimensional painting and by his mastery of light and movement, Tintoretto gave a greater impetus to the modernization of painting than any other Venetian. His influence can be traced in the work of artists through the centuries.

There is a portrait of a Venetian general by Tintoretto in the Hammer collection, a fine example of 16th century painting.

Other items of this collection will be reviewed at a later date.

Westcoast Revises Application

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board began hearings Tuesday of applications by two companies to export a total of 665,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily from the province.

The applications are from Westcoast Transmission Ltd. and Alberta and Southern Gas Ltd. Both are amended applications of submissions rejected by the board last year.

The new applications request lesser amounts of gas than the original submissions as well as claims that new gas fields are under contract to the companies.

Alberta and Southern proposes to sell gas in the California area and Westcoast to the northwestern States. Their plan calls for construction of a joint pipeline from the Alberta border through the Crowsnest Pass to the United States border at Newgate, B.C.

An application was also made by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines for an additional export permit on 1,100,000,000,000 cubic feet before 1981.

G. H. Steer, counsel for the Canadian Western Natural Gas Company, and Northwest Utilities, said Trans-Canada should not get the extra gas until it has given assurances that the future gas needs of the province can be met.

He said his companies had so far failed to secure a contract with Trans-Canada that would give them first call on gas otherwise destined for export.
